Fishing for People

According to the Editors of Homiletics:

We have it from good authority that when popular speaker Tony Campolo is flying to his next engagement, he doesn't worry too much about whether he will end up with chatty seatmates. If he is in the mood to talk, he tells them that he is a sociologist (which he is). If he is tired and not in the mood to talk, he tells them he is a Christian evangelist (which he also is).

Most Christians are eager to share their faith, but have a hard time finding an interested audience. The problem may be that you are sending out an, "I'm a Christian evangelist" vibe. Since most people really don't enjoy being preached to, the evangelist vibe will only chase them away.

When attempting to make a connection with people, it's better to be interesting than pushy. As with everything, Jesus is always our model. Jesus seldom said what people were expecting and usually raised more questions than He answered.

Mark 1:17

Jesus called out to them, "Come, follow me, and I will show you how to fish for people!"

I love you all,
Tim
